Specialities:

Gear:

Summary: (machine translated)
Simple and short canyon if we keep the lower part, the upper part is not worth it, it is an hour more of approach for 2 rappels and a lot of walking.

Hydrology:

Access: (machine translated)
Take the N230 to Pont de Suert. Upon arrival there is a detour to the N260 (Tremp) that in a few kilometers leads to a detour to the left to Malpàs by the LV-5212.
Just before arriving there is a sharp left turn and straight ahead a small road to Castellars and Erta, we will take it and continue to the bridge over the river Malpàs, here we will continue straight ahead on a track that leads to the old mines and before starting the climb, in an esplanade we will park in a parking lot.

Approach: (machine translated)
We follow the track uphill until the second sharp left turn (about 30-40min walk), here we turn right in search of a slightly marked path that shortly after becomes clearer and gently descends to the ravine. When we reach the course of a stream we descend down it to the barrando.

Tour: (machine translated)
Simple, with 5 rappels, two of them can be skipped but checking very well.

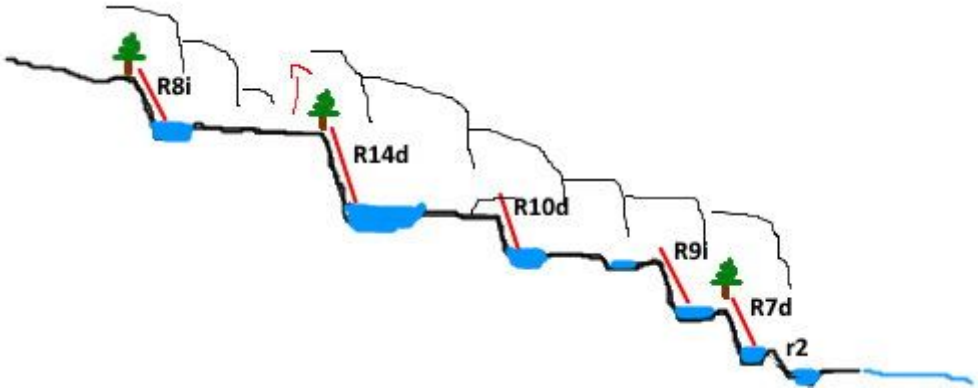

Return: (machine translated)
After the last rappel, there is a short climb and soon we can exit to the left onto an old track that leads us to where we parked.
