Resumen: (traducción alternativa)
Short, but very beautiful, incised canyon. Alternative canyon after rainfall.

Hidrología:

Acceso: (traducción alternativa)
Drive from Absam in the direction of Andreas-Hofer-Kaserne. Parking is available at the Absam sports club and tennis club.

Acceso: (traducción alternativa)
Follow the asphalt road from the tennis club (Gspreidach). At the first bend, follow a path upwards until you come to a gravel track. From here, follow the forest road briefly downhill again until another steep path branches off to the right. Follow this to the Buchtaler Hütte (entry directly behind it).

Recorrido: (traducción alternativa)
1. damaged chain scraping link in upper anchor
2. crooked single hook with scraping link
3. short chain with steel rope backing
Intermediate ledge must be roped over
4. several anchors and chain
5. good chain behind block
6. several anchors connected by slings, lowest anchor good
Chain
7. single bolt
8. anchor with screw link 5m

Sunny almost all day at midday.

Regreso: (traducción alternativa)
After the last rappel, follow the stream and then the gravel path to the forest path. Then take the access path back to the parking lot.

550m approach, very beautiful canyon. Third anchor very high. Otherwise everything was fine. Long way out via scree ramp which becomes very steep at the bottom and is unpleasant to walk due to the large boulders. (traducción alternativa)

Possible plan B when it has rained a lot. Most gravel is diverted into a neighbour gully. Solid compact rock. Home to local gemse. Unfortunately the canyon is too short. Done with e-bike partially.

Water level increased after several days of (heavy) rain (snowfall from 1200 m). Full neoprene required! Anchor points are all okay, even if there is room for improvement in terms of rope friction. Unfortunately, the tour comes at the price of a much too long approach and an equally long return. You climb a good 300 vertical meters to the exit and logically also descend again afterwards. All the water actually seeps away in the wide gravel bed on the way back. (traducción alternativa)

Beautiful canyon. The second anchor is quite high, but all in all really well bolted. All anchors are quite new.

On the ascent, the amount of water at the exit seemed extremely small. And that despite a lot of rain during the night and now still a little drizzle. After the steep ascent, however, we were proved wrong at the top: the stream had more water than we had expected. It was great fun, the installation was good. As we were not yet a well-rehearsed canyoning team, it took us just under 4 hours in total (2 hours of which were in the canyon). (traducción alternativa)

Great alternative after rain! Drilled a new bolt for the rope railing for the 3rd abseil (from the top; 26m). Good cell phone reception in the gorge. (traducción alternativa)
