Resumen: (traducción alternativa)
Raw data import from Descente Canyons https://www.descente-canyon.com/canyoning/canyon/21524

Hidrología: (traducción alternativa)
Should be done after a rainy period. Interesting canyon when there is water. The indentation in front of the C45 can be problematic when the water level is very high.

Acceso: (traducción alternativa)
From Vuillafans, drive in the direction of Longeville. Park the car down the valley in Château-Vieux-les-Fosses (small parking lot in the bends below the fortifications) and continue towards Longeville. The start of the canyon is at the bridge over the stream. It is best to park.
For access without a shuttle, you will have to walk the 3 km route.

Acceso: (traducción alternativa)
The road leads directly to the first rappel.

Recorrido: (traducción alternativa)
The descent begins with 2 jumps (<5m) on AN. This is followed by a C10 and then a C25.
The rest of the descent is a long hike interrupted by jumps and a nice little narrow section (C10).
You reach the last obstacle, a small blockage that leads to the very nice C45. Watch out for the friction.

Commitment quite high, no evasive options along the whole route, but possibility to get clear of high water very easily.

Regreso: (traducción alternativa)
After the last abseiling point, follow the stream and then take the path on the RD that leads to the village of Château-Vieux-les-Fosses (25mn). From there, take the road back up to the car.

You can park directly at the entry point by the small bridge. The first two mentioned AN rappels <5m can also simply be bypassed via the road and then rattled off, which is also recommended. The first step still has a sling around the tree with a chain link, but the second after that no longer does. There is a lot of slogging, a lot of wood in the canyon. You are basically just climbing over wood. The 45m final waterfall is of course the highlight of the tour. Then a nice walk to Châteauvieux-les-Fossés. We parked the 2nd car there.
