Resumen: (traducción alternativa)
Aquatic canyon - also known by the fancy name "Jabron" - in granite stone with slides and possible jumps

Hidrología:

Acceso: (traducción alternativa)
Coming from the Brenner Pass on the A22, we first take the Vipiteno exit in a northerly direction, then after Gossensaß head WNW into the Pflersch Valley. We reach the village of Innerpflersch and continue to the Hotel Feuerstein. Behind the hotel we find a large gravel parking lot. We park our car here. For the approach from Sterzing, see also the photo gallery.

Acceso: (traducción alternativa)
Now we first cross the Pflerschbach to the orographic left side of the stream and follow the road westwards and over the stream. At the exit of the road, there is a dirt road/path that continues in the same direction and meets a tarred road. The bridge is directly to the left here, from which you rope down 25m into the stream. See also the photo gallery for access.

Recorrido: (traducción alternativa)
After the rappel from the bridge, 5 more rappels, slides and possible jumps follow. A tyrolienne is also possible.

Regreso: (traducción alternativa)
After the tributary of the Sandesbach coming from the left, turn left and up to the access path. Follow it back to the parking lot.

Currently too high water due to high temperatures and frequent thunderstorms.

Very aquatic tour. Anchors fit very well so far. According to the topographic view, rappel from the tree is no longer possible as the tree no longer exists. Jumps with deep pools. (traducción alternativa)
