Resumen: (traducción alternativa) Beautiful rapel canyon in a rather wide streambed. Not very incised, but very continuous and with few walking passages
Hidrología:
Acceso: (traducción alternativa) Drive into the Verzasca valley, through Lavertezzo. After passing the stream on the left, you can park in a parking bay on the left.
Acceso: (traducción alternativa) From the parking bay, follow the road further north. Cross the Verzasca at the 1st public bridge and follow the hiking trail south again. After entering the forest, the hiking trail branches off to the right after 300m. Be careful, the junction is not very easy to see. Follow this path up to an altitude of 1240m. This is the entry point. Alternatively, you can shorten the detour over the bridge by crossing the Verzasca and walking through the river.
Recorrido: (traducción alternativa) From entry to exit, the canyon has rappels throughout and is very continuous. There are almost no longer walking passages. At the last rapel (comes after a 50m rapel from which you can already see the road) do not rapel into the crack but onto the back behind it. Otherwise it is difficult to pull off the rope. Then follow the ridge and descend to the hiking trail.
Regreso: (traducción alternativa) Once you reach the hiking trail, walk through the Verzasca to the road. Follow this to the north until you reach the car.

All anchors available. From halfway up the canyon, some of the anchors are very unusually placed. You first have to downclimb the first part of the waterfall until you reach the anchor. Beautiful rappel canyon without long walking passages. Perfect when it gets colder in the fall. (traducción alternativa)
