Resumen: (traducción alternativa) Alpine rappelling gorge at the exit of Val Dogna. Sunny waterfalls at the top, a short gorge at the bottom
Hidrología:
Acceso: (traducción alternativa) From Dogna, follow the road down into the valley, passing Chiout Zucuin, Chiout, Costa Saccetto, and Mincigos. After crossing the Rio Budic and the Rio Bianco, a forest road with a no-vehicle sign branches off to the right; just past it, there are parking spots on both sides of the road.
Acceso: (traducción alternativa) Head briefly downhill along the forest road and cross the Torrente Dogna via a ford; then ascend briefly and follow the forest road branching off to the right, which descends gently toward the southwest. At its highest point, turn left onto an old military trail (reflectors, painted dots, and “Via Dogna” signage). Follow the old wartime trail uphill through several hairpin bends until faded red paint dots point to the right. Climb about 150 meters in elevation along the colored dots—a strenuous and slippery ascent—until you reach the ridge bordering Val Rottas. Either descend immediately here via a steep grassy gully or follow the path to the wire-rope-secured stream crossing and then downclimb alongside the stream.

Regreso: (traducción alternativa)

Descend through the streambed until you reach a gravel gully coming in from the right. At the exit of the gravel gully, ascend to the right to reach the forest road from the access.
Follow the forest road uphill for about 80hm until you reach the turnoff to Via Dogna, then head back to the car the same way you accessed it.

First ascent. Set in a scenic location at the foot of Montasch, with a surprisingly arduous access route via the Via Dogna, followed by refreshing waterfalls with scenic views. The confluence with the Rio Montasio is very impressive. (traducción alternativa)
