Resumen: (traducción alternativa)
Adventure canyon above Andreis in the catchment area of Torrente Ledron, not named on the Tabacco map.

Hidrología:

Acceso: (traducción alternativa)
From Maniago via Montereale and the long Fara tunnel into the Cellina valley. After the tunnel, turn right to Andreis. Go through the village and stop at the last parking lot (fountain and picnic table)

Acceso: (traducción alternativa)
Briefly follow the road to the north, then turn right onto a road that leads over a low saddle into the streambed of the Torrente Ledron. Follow the marked path to the left towards Bivacco del'Asta (CAI 976).
Follow the path until you cross a streambed, then ascend to the right of an old landslide with short hairpin bends up to approx. 650m. Above the edge of the landslide, turn right onto a meadow, then slightly uphill into the deciduous forest. Above the edge of another landslide you should find the start of a clear hunters path. Follow the mostly clearly marked path to the bottom of the valley.
At approx. 790m you cross a water-bearing side stream. Entry via the side stream would be possible here (at least 3 abseiling points, not yet set up). Alternatively, you could also try to follow the path further east, you should reach the stream after the second abseil point.
We ascended here on very indistinct climbing tracks to the NE over steep grass and crossed northwards at the top of the crest towards a blocking rock face. Just before the rock face, rappel approx. 30m from a tree. It would certainly be worth a try to climb further up the grassy ridge and then rappel north into the gorge.

First ascent, access via a surprisingly good path that is no longer on the Tabacco map. Too early, you could (laboriously) climb a little higher. However, the terrain quickly becomes steep and exposed. The canyon itself is adventure terrain with short walking passages between the rappels. (traducción alternativa)
