Résumé: (traduction alternative)
Short tour that has two narrow parts. Unfortunately, there is a lot of walking before and after, so you can't do the canyon very quickly.

Hydrologie: (traduction alternative)
Relatively small catchment area, will probably be almost completely dry in summer, best suited for spring.

Accès: (traduction alternative)
Park at the exit of the canyon at 1290m.

Approche: (traduction alternative)
At P.1440 take the hiking trail up to around 1550m, and then try to get into the canyon from the side (you may need a rope) as the stream is not worthwhile above this point.

Tour: (traduction alternative)
Two parts with two rappels each (15m and 10m, then 5m and 15m) interrupted by a walking passages with lots of wood ...

Retour: (traduction alternative)
Turn right at the forest road at 1290m.

Nice surprise to have found gulches up there near Anzère. But unfortunately you have to fight your way through a lot of wood. Overall, you can do the tour once, but hardly a second time. (traduction alternative)
