Résumé: (traduction alternative) Alpine canyon, south-facing, little cut, sequence of waterfalls without runs, no possible jumps, rarely a possibility for slides, short, pleasant access
Hydrologie:
Accès: (traduction alternative) From Chateau d'Oex in the Saane Valley (975m a.s.l.) we take the Route du Mont, \nhalten at the last houses on the right. Passing the houses of Le Mont (1097m a.s.l.), we go up to the hamlet of Les Planches (farm on the right above the road, 1300m a.s.l.), which we reach after crossing a small stream a few meters before. 260m further on, we do not take the hairpin bend to the right, but keep straight on, and then after another 190m - again a farmstead on the right above the road - we park our car in the right-hand bend on the open space to the left of the road. From here you can see the Leyvra already shr well.
Approche: (traduction alternative) We follow the road slightly uphill for 300m and we arrive at the farmstead L'Eterpaz, 1368m above sea level. Here the road ends. From here we follow the inconspicuous path across the meadow slightly uphill into the forest. We pass a wooden hut ("Au Pralez, alt. 1443m") and a few minutes later we reach the streambed. As with the neighboring Tenasses, you can still climb on the orographic. right side of the slope to start the descent a little higher in the stream.
Tour: (traduction alternative) Descent in mostly open streambed on grippy and mostly smoothly polished limestone in small-scale ledges. Practically no running trails.
Retour: (traduction alternative) Where the stream flattens out (1270m a.s.l.), we climb out on indistinct tracks to the left and walk trail-less across the meadows up to the parking lot.
