Résumé: (traduction alternative)
Open, simple, with water all year round, we will find this small wonder of small narrows and small rappels avoidable. The access by car is not easy but the environment and the development of the ravine compensates. Ideal to combine with some other in the area due to its small size.

Accès: (traduction alternative)
We'll start in the charming village of Camprodon, deep in the Girona Pyrenees
We'll take the C-17 to Ripoll, where we'll take the C-26 and then the N-260 toward Sant Joan de les Abadesses. A little over a kilometer past the town, we'll take the C-38 to Camprodon.
Right at the entrance to Camprodon, there's a roundabout where the left exit takes us to Llanars via the GIV5264. Once we reach Llanars, also at the entrance, we'll find the turnoff to the right toward Feitús and the Oratori de Sant Pere at a small plaza featuring a unique sculpture.
Take the trail that climbs to Feitús (very narrow—proceed with caution) through lush forests and green pastures, with a stream running alongside—a unique setting that's worth the trip just to enjoy the surroundings.
As the valley begins to narrow, the road starts to climb toward Feitús; just before reaching it, there's a very sharp left-hand hairpin turn where you can park without any trouble.
If we continue, we can park at the Oratori, which is 200 meters further on to our left; if we're driving a tall vehicle, we'll continue to the next right-hand hairpin turn, where a trail branches off straight ahead that we can take to park.

Approche: (traduction alternative)
We follow this track to El Rodà, we leave it by the path that goes down to the river and turns right to meet the river at the confluence with a stream on the left side.

Tour: (traduction alternative)
Small abseilings and cliffs with areas of very well formed but not very important narrows. The rappels are avoidable

Retour: (traduction alternative)
After the last rappel (and its narrowing) we will exit to the left to the meadow to go up the course for about 150m, then we will go up the slope along the remains of a path that leads us to the access path.
