Résumé: (traduction alternative)
Dry canyon, except after rains, in an area with little traffic but great environment and very close to the Cucales, we could combine them in the same day.
A couple of fattened areas and a final rappel of 30m very remarkable, yes, very careful with the marmites and pools with residual water.

Hydrologie:

Accès: (traduction alternative)
By the CV700 to Planes and from here we will continue to Catamarruc or Benialfaquí.
In Catarramuc we go around the village to the south and when we leave the village we continue to the right. We will take the detours to go down to the riverbed, after crossing the Catarramuc river, a left turn and after 100m there is a track to the west to Benialfaquí. 500m later we will arrive at our ravine, we park the car here to return.
From Benialfaquí, in the back part a track towards the east that we will follow during 2km.
If we have two vehicles we will have to follow the tracks that go up to the top of the ravine.

Approche: (traduction alternative)
On the left side of the ravine there is a track that goes up the ravine, once we reach an old corral we will follow a path that will take us up to 900m high, here we leave the path and go up the remaining meters to the crest and then down to the riverbed.

Tour: (traduction alternative)
Many small abseilable rappels up to the most fattened area where we will find several marmites and pools. We will have to be attentive to the facilities since we have diverters and some old rope to save these inconveniences.
After all this we will arrive at the spectacular rappel of almost 30m with the first ones in flight.

Retour: (traduction alternative)
After the 28m rappel we will leave to the left to take the access track. If we continue along the riverbed we could do another short rappel but it is not worth it, the riverbed is too closed.
