Résumé: (traduction alternative)
Steep, alpine canyon. Requires "natural" belay techniques.

Hydrologie:

Accès: (traduction alternative)
From Arthur's Pass Village, follow SH73 north on foot to Punchbowl Road and the Car Park.
(You can also park one car there, the second at the exit - saves about 2km/30min walking time)

Approche: (traduction alternative)
From the Car Park, follow the Devils Punchbowl Track once over the Bealey River and a second time over Devils Punchbowl Creek. Then turn right and follow the Mount Aicken Track for about 800m. At about 1620m, descend in a south-facing chute for 750m until you reach a small mountain lake. From there, descend steeply south-east into the canyon.

Tour: (traduction alternative)
The tour starts at approx. 1400m. In 2019 only 3 stands were drilled. The rest were rappelled at natural points.

Retour: (traduction alternative)
The canyon exits at about 1000m. Then follow the streambed to the Bealey River (approx. 45min). From there either take the second car or walk on the SH73 back to Arthur's Pass Village.

Have gone after heavy rain, but no problem at all due to small catchment area. Very little drilled in, as already announced. However, there were many fixed loops with maillons. Are probably got in a little too high and have certainly 2-3x re-drilled. (traduction alternative)
