Résumé: (traduction alternative)
Short and easy descent if the flow is not high. It is considered one of the best ravines in Picos de Europa. Abundant water with fantastic corners that will delight everyone.
The equipment is very good because it is used by active tourism companies in the area (handrails and auxiliary ropes equipped).
14.09.2025-Poza that precedes the first jump, inside the uncovered strait, changes evaluation and access to the 1st rappel. See observations!
Like all ravines in the north, after heavy rains it becomes charged with the consequent danger. In addition, out of season, the companies fail to replenish / repair the facilities. To be taken into account!

Hydrologie:

Accès: (traduction alternative)
By the AS114 between Cangas de Onís and Arenas de Cabrales we have the high of Ortiguero, and next to the village of Canales.
We will take the road that leaves Canales and goes down to La Molina 2.5kms. We parked at the entrance of the village

Approche: (traduction alternative)
Walking already with the junk of the descent we will cross the village and, taking the old Roman road, we follow the route of the Casañu Gorge. We will reach the natural arch that gives its name to the canyon and two bridges, one of them medieval. We continue to the right, without crossing the bridges, to enter a few meters further, next to the cave.

Tour: (traduction alternative)
Start with the first rappel, which will leave us in some narrows where water abounds. Be careful with the movements of ague in the next rappel, better to jump and avoid compromising yourself. From here on it is a channel carved with chaos of rocks, corridors, ... a delight.

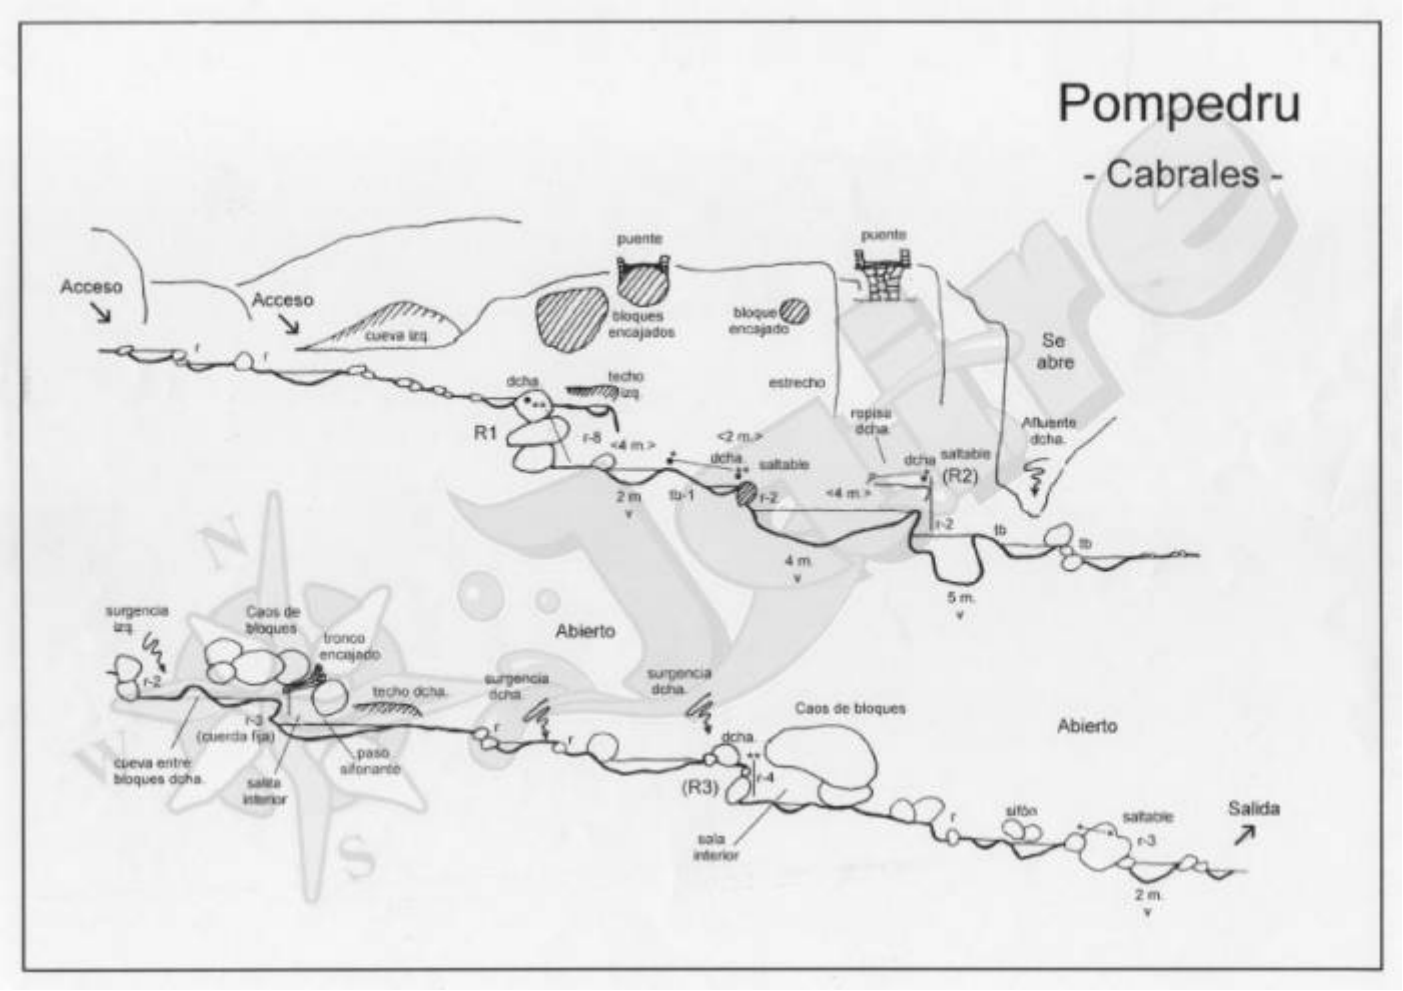

Retour: (traduction alternative)
At the last pool, we will see a path on our left that, through the forest, will lead us to the cobblestone access road.
