Résumé: (traduction alternative) Very beautiful canyon with many successive green pools and several small jumps and slides. Can be combined very well with the Weissache.
Hydrologie:
Accès: (traduction alternative) From Kramsach along the Brandenberger Ache to the parking lot (https://maps.app.goo.gl/WSEoA8iSn9xJMG5R7).
Approche: (traduction alternative) From the parking lot down to the Brandenberger Ache as far as the bridge (Trauersteg). From here you can follow the Ache upstream either along the gravel road (left) or the hiking trail (right) to the next bridge (at this point the Weißache flows into the Brandenberger Ache). Then follow the forest path upwards (runs parallel to the Weißache into the valley). Always keep left at the junctions. Pass the Weittal hunting lodge until shortly before the Weittalalm. This is the entry point (easy to reach via a small meadow from the forest path).
Tour: (traduction alternative) (to be added)...at least 7 abseiling points, not higher than 30m...
Retour: (traduction alternative) The Weittalbach flows into the Weißache. Here you can either follow the Weißache to the confluence with the Brandenberger Ache, or get out on the right and follow the forest path back to the parking lot.

2024-07-06 Moosi ★★★★ ⚡ ⚡ ★★ ⚡ ★★★★ ⚡ Normale ➔ Terminé Very scenic canyon. The stands were all in good condition and there were also a few easy climbing passages. We had a canyoning novice with us who was experienced in the Alps, and it was quite doable for him too. We were still on time for the ascent, but it took us about 3 hours in the canyon, so we didn't do the Weißache. However, we were not yet a very experienced 3-person canyoning team. Parking costs 5 euros. (traduction alternative)
2024-04-06 Clarissa Linder ★★★★ ⚡ ⚡ ★ ⚡ ★★★★ ⚡ Normale ➔ Terminé Some slides/jumps possible, pool not covered with gravel. No abseiling point higher than 30m. Mainly chain anchors of good quality. Approx. 5 minutes (on foot) before the indicated parking lot, free parking on the side of the road. (traduction alternative)
