Résumé: (traduction alternative)
Long, impressive tour with wild access.

Hydrologie:

Accès: (traduction alternative)
SS203 from Belluno Ri. Agordo, at Ponte Mas turn left towards "Valle del Mis". After a few tunnels and a bridge, park at the Pian Falcina restaurant.

Approche: (traduction alternative)
Follow the marked nature trail into Valle Falcina. After about 15 minutes you cross two streams before the path becomes a little steeper again. At the exit of this ascent, an initially inconspicuous path branches off to the right (N 46.1626809 E 12.0492249). Follow this path upwards over the wooded ridge, the path is always clearly visible. Stay right at the first fork in the path, then left uphill at the second fork. A long, ascending traverse begins. When you reach a dry streambed, follow it briefly uphill before cairns lead you back to the left. The path remains clearly visible here too, but likes to hide in the high grass in the open terrain. Continue ascending across, below a high rock face a very inconspicuous path branches off to the left (two red dots, possibly the emergency exit), keep right here and ascend in many hairpin bends to an old hunter's shelter. Continue left over a watercourse and cross less steeply high above the valley floor. After crossing a dry streambed, you reach a larger tributary. Cross this and follow the path, which is poorly visible from here, for about 50m to a ridge covered in mountain pines. Here (N 46.1651739, E 12.0286065) you cross to the left, the hunters path we have followed so far leads straight ahead up the slope.

From here, there are hardly any traces of the trail, the path can only be found by following the many cut marks on branches/lathe and a few cairns. First cross briefly, then descend very steeply for 20 m through an earthy chute before reaching another long crossing via a short rocky ledge. You cross a stream below a beautiful waterfall, ascend very steeply for a short time on the opposite bank before a final, partially exposed traverse leads to the valley floor. You reach the stream below a small gorge with several waterfalls.

Do not descend too early, as the stream quickly cuts deep into the valley. The access path is marked on the OSM.

Tour: (traduction alternative)
Waterfall steps up to 45m in a beautiful canyon without gravel or boulder climbing, after 3/4 of the tour escape possibility to the left (cairns). Unfortunately, the canyon becomes less attractive in the last quarter of the tour. The protection is good in the upper three quarters, in the lower part it is mainly block slings.

* Downclimb 3m, slippery
* C 5m: anchors on the right
* small slides
* C 4m: rope sling left (under grass)
* C 14m: anchor right, possibly jumpable
* C 30m: 2 anchors on the right
* C 18m: Rope sling around tree on the right
* C 13m: anchor right
* C 3m: anchor right
* C 28m: 2 anchors right
* C 5m: anchor right
* C 4m: anchor right
* C 40m: 2 anchors right
* C 4 + 11m: anchor left, climb over the clamping block
* 2 jumps up to 4m
* short walking passages
* C 22m: 2 anchors left
* C 37m: 2 anchors left
* C 16m: anchor left
* C 12m: anchor left
* short walking passages, at the exit escape route left
* C 18m: 2 anchors left
* C 10m: anchor right
* From here on, the rock layers are more vertical and there are many boulders in the streambed.

Lots of downclimbing, and three rappels, the first two from chockstone slings, the last from an anchor on the left side

Retour: (traduction alternative)
Follow the marked hiking trail with just under 100m of counter ascent back to the parking lot.

All good. Access only the last 400m of the traverse a bit wild, otherwise good path. (traduction alternative)
