Résumé: (traduction alternative) Simple canyon to be done after rains to catch it with good flow. The tracks are marked for access by car to the upper part, but they are private properties and we should first talk to the owners to avoid problems.
Hydrologie:
Accès: (traduction alternative) Starting in Loja on the A92, we'll cross the Genil River to reach the San Francisco neighborhood. We'll head up San Francisco Street toward the train station, and just before we get there, we'll turn left onto Las Cruces Street to cross to the other side of the tracks. We'll continue east on the street, with the tracks on our left, and take the first street (Adelfas Street) to head downhill. Where the street ends, a forest trail begins that runs parallel to the Genil River; we'll follow it for 2 km until we reach the entrance to our ravine. Here we'll park the car we'll use for the return trip. If we have two vehicles, drive the first one back 1.5 kilometers and turn left onto the trail that climbs the hill. Another kilometer and a half later, we'll reach a junction on the upper trail; take it by turning left. After 600 meters, there's another intersection; this time, take the path downhill to the left. Another 600 meters further on, take the path to the right until you reach the end of the trail. There's a farm at the end, so please be respectful and find a spot where you won't disturb anyone.
Approche: (traduction alternative) From the access car we continue straight ahead along the track almost until it ends and turns right, at which point there is a small path to the left to go down to the riverbed. From the car of return by the path parallel to the stream. Another option is to park next to the stream along the track that crosses it (see map).
Tour: (traduction alternative) See mole, easy descent to make after rains, it is rare that it tends to load too much
Retour: (traduction alternative) After the natural rappel, we will exit to the right onto a track that will take us to the track where we parked next to the Genil river.
