Résumé: (traduction alternative)
Long and wild but rewarding tour in the Friulaun Dolomites. Access path difficult to find.

Hydrologie:

Accès: (traduction alternative)
At Ospitale di Cadore, get off the SS51 and then follow the old road upstream. Turn right down a short sand road and park the car on the gravel bank of the Piave.

Approche: (traduction alternative)
Wade through the Piave and hike briefly downstream to the mouth of the Val Costamolin. On the orographic right side of the gorge exit, take a well-marked path up the first mountain slope, then follow the markings until they lead downhill to the right. Keep left here, the path is no longer marked and is difficult to see in the high grass. Ascend above a drop-off, then follow the path, which is more visible here, until it flattens out in the area of the ruined Casera Costamolin Bassa. Do not follow the path marked on the tabacco map uphill here, but stay on an overgrown but clearly visible path at an altitude of 900m (freshly cut, cairns). After a short steeper ascent into a forest saddle, the path leads in a descending traverse into the streambed of Val Costamolin. The path is largely correctly marked in OSM.

Tour: (traduction alternative)
18 rappelling points up to 25m. The waterfalls are mostly washed out nice and smooth, and often have a water fountain built in. In the upper part, a 20min long descending section clouds the fun a bit. After 2/3 of the canyon there is a short artificial tunnel (here entry/exit to the right). In the lowest third the gorge becomes very narrow and steep, waterfalls and diving pools alternate.

Retour: (traduction alternative)
Crossing the Piave river and back to the car

We hiked only the lowest section—short, beautiful, narrow, and continuous—starting at an elevation of approximately 550 m. Up to this point, the approach trail is well-trodden and clearly marked. In this section, there are only 6 rope descents in total, including the spectacular 30-meter one that starts from a narrow corridor. The approach took 15 minutes, and the canyon hike took 1 hour. A GPS is recommended for the approach to the Integral; it’s easy to get lost among the various grassy trails. A beautiful but uneven canyon. Single anchors in the upper section, double anchors in the lower section... the waterfall beneath the stream is spectacular. (traduction alternative)

Approach very steep and difficult to find. A lot of burrs necessary, hooks only sparse and available in the most necessary places. (traduction alternative)
