Résumé: (traduction alternative)
Canyon with some beautiful large pools.
There are a few nice jumps - if you look carefully you will also find at least one 15 m jump.

Hydrologie:

Accès: (traduction alternative)
We leave the SS 33 (Gravellona - Domodossola), which goes up the Ossola valley, through the exit of Piedimulera and we go west on the SS 549 in the Val d'Anza towards Macugnaga. After 10 km (from the SS 33 exit) we reach the village of Molini, where we leave our car and continue on foot, turning left immediately after the village. Crossing the Torrente Anza, we go uphill on a narrow road for 850 m, then.we come to a bridge over the Val Segnara.

Approche: (traduction alternative)
On foot we continue, turning left immediately after the village. Across the Torrente Anza, we go uphill on a narrow road for 850 meters, then cross the bridge and immediately down to the right to the stream.

Tour: (traduction alternative)
Quite a wide canyon; somewhat slippery; when rappelling along the wall of the water drainage, the two pitons are only used as a safety measure to reach the chain anchor on the valley side, which is not visible from above. You can end the tour with a 13 m jump into the Torrente Anza. Here you can also use the large boulder to build a rope slide (2025)

Retour: (traduction alternative)
About 50 meters downstream in the Anza, then out to the right on a fishing path and upstream on the covered canal to the bridge. At the church, cross the Anza through the village, cross the bridge again and return to the car.

It's really beautiful, but you're through it quickly… The rain from the day before didn't leave a trace here; a few jumps are possible. (traduction alternative)

Nice, but unfortunately very short. Very slippery. The Anza River is carrying a lot of brown water right now. (traduction alternative)

Everything's great. All the jumps are doable. The canyon is suffering a bit from the low water level and the high temperatures (lots of algae). (traduction alternative)
