Résumé:
Canyon section between the dam and climbing sector that despite the beautiful water colours of the dam, does not deliver the same goods. A few abseils, but most of all walking with vegetation or the occasional landslide preceed the more narrow part. A water canal and before you know it, you have arrived back at the climbing crag.

Hydrologie:
Large water capture above.

Accès:
Park the lower car at climbing sector Val Gallina. Drive up to the dam with bike or car. Alternatively walk the concrete access road.

Approche:
Access the valley floor best way possible, mind the large water pipe, where the dam could potentially do an (automated) flushing.

Water colour is greyish, somewhat muddy from the dam. Large landslide avoided on the right, abseiled from a tree back into the canyon. Hooks in place, looks like climbers. Added a few more to complete the decent.
