Matériel:

Résumé: (traduction alternative)
Simple canyon, except for the 4th rappel, dry, with a more interesting first part (up to the 4th rappel) and a second part, with a lot of walking, which can be avoided and thus be done with only one vehicle. In this way we could combine it in the day with San Joaquín doing its sportier parts.

Hydrologie:

Accès: (traduction alternative)
Bcos Escobonal area
We have to be located by the TF28 in Fasnia.
Access to the banks Herques, Volcán and San Joaquín.
We will go towards the soccer field and the cemetery. We will park in this area

Approche: (traduction alternative)
We will head towards the soccer field, from the south side of the Real del Sur road, after 100m we will leave the track and turn left to the riverbed.

Tour: (traduction alternative)
See mole

Retour: (traduction alternative)
Return to the Herques, Volcán and San Joaquín rivers.
After the 4th rappel, of 60m, we continue almost 100m along the riverbed and we go to the right to the slope/pedrera by which we will ascend. When arriving at the hill we will take the track that ascends towards the cemetery and we will follow it in ascending direction.
If we have chosen to follow the ravine, when we reach the road that crosses us, we will go left towards the Brusas, after 200m we will find the vehicle.

Short version is described here, but the lower part is a very scenic-volcanic hike, with caves that may have been inhabited by the Guanches. It would be a shame to miss it. We continued until shortly before the highway, exited right to the secondary road + 5min of crosscountry to the highway exit and tunnel, which takes us back to the car at Cafeteria Los Roques (3-4hr) continuing to the beach would also be an option.
