Giro: (traduzione alternativa)
A difficult and challenging alpine canyon characterized by a very long corridor with numerous abseiling points, almost all of which are under waterfalls, with the canyon walls being less than one metre deep in many places. There is no escape route for the first 220 meters. The second part offers more breathing space and a few more escape routes, but is by no means to be underestimated. The exploratory routes are obviously the only ones you should use, and although they are in sheltered places, they are very risky given the nature of the canyon.

Entry at 1170 HM is 25 rappels.

ATTENTION: On weekdays there can be loud, rather disturbing disturbing explosions from the nearby quarry, which could be dangerous during the last rappel.
Avoid on weekdays or exit to the left before the last rappel.

Ritorno: (traduzione alternativa)
Take the exit on the left and drive onto a small dirt road.
Follow this road in a southerly direction and you will reach the bridge over the Toce, which you crossed on the outward journey.

Viene segnalata la discesa di un gruppo da quota 1170 fino alla cava. Sforrato a causa di armi non sufficienti. Per la prossima discesa è obbligatorio entrare con molta attrezzatura d'armo. Foto 2: visione da fuori dell'ultima calata

Canyon che segue una impressionantr fessura nella roccia, molto stretto e (per fortuna c'era poca acqua) tecnico per cascate sotto il flusso che anche scarso si fa sentire... non xi sono grandi pozz3, molto lungo e senza vie di fuga. Stancante anche per l'avvicinamento lungo e ripido
