Sintesi: (traduzione alternativa) Steep tour with several, higher rappel. Worthwhile after rains
Idrologia:
Accesso: (traduzione alternativa) Exit: From Kranskja Gora, follow road 201 towards Jesenice. After Gozd Martuljek, you will pass two signposted parking lots. About 300m after the second parking lot, you can park just before the bridge over the mostly dry stream. Entry: Follow the road for about 700m, then turn left onto a sand road. Follow this sand road over a hairpin bend, then park on the right just before an overgrown forest path. Space for 3 cars.
Avvicinamento: (traduzione alternativa) Follow the overgrown forest path to its exit, then stay on the transverse path. This path is exposed in places but always clearly visible until above the large waterfall. Cross the stream and stay above the rock faces along indistinct tracks until you reach a clear transverse path in the area of a flat saddle. Follow this path to the right to the streambed. Intermediate access. Just before you cross the Strmi ditch for the first time, you can also ascend to the right over a largely pathless ridge until you can cross back into the streambed on the left. You reach the canyon after the first 3 rappels.

Normally this is a dry gorge and only intended as a canyon tour after rainfall. We walked the canyon with outdoor equipment when there was little water. Only splashing water and no lake to swim in. The main waterfall at the end was dry. All anchors in good condition, 2 tree abseils, 1 block abseil, didn't find an anchor point. We had the drill with us, but it wasn't needed. I think this canyon is great even when it's almost dry. (traduzione alternativa)
